I have manufactured a webpage on laptop tools and I would like to know how to determine if all of the other posts on my site have been written by me or by spammers. Is there any way to make my website spam free? I am not sure how to approach this problem.Q: Regular expression for parsing value I need help with an regular expression for parsing an hour from a string. My input is: 12:00:00 I want to get 12 I tried: (hour|hour.?) but its not working, any ideas?

Thanks A: This should do it: `.hour.` In full: `(?:.hour.)`
Checking out regex101.com: In case you want to make sure that only the second part is captured you can change the regex to: `.?hour.` A: Although you could capture multiple fields using a group, I prefer to be more specific. For the single hour, you can use the pattern `/[0-2]?[0-5][0-9]/`; You can then use `match(RegExp)` to capture the hour, as shown in this demo In the same example, the use of `match(/[0-2]?[0-5][0-9]/)` takes care of the 12:00:00 problem (as mentioned by @iggy). Update An alternative is to use `\d{1,2}`: The tricky part of this is the above does not capture the hours if it is 1 or 2 (12:00:00, 12:30:00, etc.), but, it handles the 12:00:00 case correctly. Demo of both Fermentation of virgin coconut oil with natural cultures with fruit skin and sugarcane molasses. Fermentation of virgin coconut oil was carried out with naturally occurring yeast, Lactobacillus helveticus, and Lactobacillus delbrueckii ssp. bulgaricus. A mixture of fruit skin and sugarcane molasses was used as the fermentation substrate. The products were compared with those obtained by replacing fruit skin with sugarcane molasses. The oil obtained by fermentation using natural cultures contained higher concentrations of medium-chain fatty acids (MCFA), lower concentrations of medium-chain saturated fatty acids (MCSFA),
